Messages from Our Lord Jesus Christ for the world of the 21st century

“The Lord Jesus Christ, by the site of Sister Beghe, wishes to communicate His words to you:

“ Words for you, My children of the 21st century. May every child who reads Me be certain that I look upon him, and I bless him. »

“My children, My faithful, it is Jesus Christ, the Word of God, who speaks to you through this medium, and the creature [Sister Beghe] who physically writes these lines is nothing other than My pencil, intended to reproduce My most holy and most venerable words, so that you may read them and bring to them the attention and the fervor of the children of God.

God bless you and I, Jesus Christ, bless you. »

Union of body and soul

I am the Almighty, the Giver of life, the Giver of animal life, and the Creator of the souls of His temporal creatures. What is the soul? The soul is the consciousness of every living being, it is created in the invisible world and it guarantees the immortality of physical life. If the body did not have a soul, it would be of no use. It is the temporal support of the soul which lives in it, it is its expression, through it the soul develops and evolves in the visible world. A body without a soul cannot exist because every body is at the service of the soul, without a soul it would be of no use.

The life of the body is physical, the life of the soul expresses itself through the body and is so intimately linked to it that God granted the body the grace to resurrect to guarantee the soul its visibility, its personality and its beauty. The soul is the life of the body, although the body also has a form of life. Indeed, the body needs food to live, it needs its legs to walk and the action of moving is part of bodily life. The bodily life depends on the life of the soul because the soul animates the body; when she leaves him, he falls asleep or dies.

The soul can detach itself from the body but the body is then without autonomy. If this detachment from the body occurs through the death of the body, the process is normal and the soul enters what is called the afterlife, that is, the invisible world in general. If the soul leaves the body without it dying, it is a dissociation which can be a spiritual grace, it can be a natural phenomenon, it can also be accidental. The only morally acceptable case is dissociation by spiritual grace because God is its origin. The other two cases of dissociation are dangerous and are not morally permitted.

When the grace of God causes a dissociation of body and soul, as certain saints have experienced, it is most often a bilocation and God is the source.

When a person exercises to make leave the soul of his body and that he succeeds, he lends himself to a dangerous game and prejudicial to his sanctification. I won't say more.

The soul is necessary for the body and the body is necessary for the soul, the particular life of each being intrinsically linked. This is so true that God has planned from all eternity to make the body live in eternity when it has, at the start, neither the capacities nor the properties.

Jesus Christ resurrected His Body which is eternally united with His Soul and His Divinity, and this Body is His forever. So it is for man: his body is destined for resurrection in order to be united with his soul and his guardian angel for eternity; the guardian angel, pure spirit, being the divine virtue which gives man his personality.

The creation willed by God for man in a state of permanent grace, had imagined human death as falling asleep as was the death of the Most Blessed Virgin Mary; his body disappeared because he rose again like that of Jesus Christ who did not remain in His tomb.

But sin entering the world debases the body, and the peaceful sleeping of the body in death gives way to death itself with its pains and sufferings, and then to its return to dust. The general resurrection at the end of earth's time is the reparative grace which Jesus Christ, by His offering, obtained for His miserable brethren on earth.

This general resurrection by which men, like Jesus Christ, will put on their glorious body is the ultimate grace offered to holy souls on the dying earth; the soul and the body associated again and united forever with the spirit which is theirs.

The general Resurrection will be like the consecration of the earth to the divine work, completely completed and repaired. Sin will have disappeared, it will have vanished and God alone will be the Master, the eternal Love, praised and adored by His own. Heaven alone will remain, for purgatory and paradise will be no more, and hell will be forgotten from the Mind of God.

Such is the marvelous culmination of God's creative work, the chapters of the Bible will be closed and God will have His most holy children around Him in His Dwelling.

May He be blessed, adored and praised for having created, thought and willed such a perfect and exceptional work.

The coronavirus or what takes its place

When the earth revolts from the abuse to which it has been subjected, men will revolt in their turn because of the scarcity to which they will have been subjected. Their revolt will make them thieves and pilferers and they will not accept their new condition of deprivation. Men have benefited from so much variety in their so-called vital needs that they will not accept deprivation.

They will revolt and extort the biggest brands; small businesses in town will also be targeted. These small businesses, already in deficit due to the closure imposed on them by the State, will be permanently closed and their owners will join the ranks of the insurgents.

The State will try to provide them with some insufficient aid but it will have no healing effect. Man has the duty to work and, without work, he fulfills neither his own condition as a worker nor his family duties. He will lose his self-esteem and many will not will not support.

When the State prevents its citizens from meeting their needs, it is not only unjust but criminal. The confinement rule can be accepted for a time but if it goes beyond the exceptional measure to become habitual, it is harmful to those it mistreats and it becomes unjust and criminal.

Now, the dose of acceptability has been reached and if the State does not reconsider this measure to allow the inhabitants to earn their daily bread and that of their families, it will have become hostile and criminal. The State has a duty to protect its citizens. If protection against disease also becomes deadly, his authority is vile and his decrees inhuman. This state of affairs is unacceptable and the inhabitants will stop accepting it at the risk of catching the disease.

to fight. This disease is less serious than the plague of past centuries, but in those remote times, there was no confinement.

The men, if they were moved by Christian and charitable sentiments, cared for the sick and brought them consolation and comfort. But the State, in the current illness, acts in the opposite direction to charity and comfort. It isolates the sick, it forbids families to help or support them, and these poor sick people can die without affection or help from the Holy Catholic and Roman Church.

This disease management is led by dry hearts, by neurotic people and by soulless leaders. These men are not worthy of their office and when their turn comes to be presented before the Tribunal of God, they will bow their heads lower than their heels and their excuses or justifications will not even be heard. May they repent and ask God for forgiveness before this terrible moment and without lies.

Yes, it is good to protect yourself from this disease because it is produced by man, not by a natural fact. It is, therefore, more harmful than a natural phenomenon because it is precisely unnatural. Any voluntary attack on the work of God, such as bombs or shooting, is more harmful than so-called natural nuisances, which have a role of balance, not of unilateral destruction.

This disease, caused by human hand, is disastrous when it affects people who are already sick, because the healing process of the first vulnerability is undermined. These people cannot overcome two assaults when they were already in difficulty. It is therefore not this disease that kills, but the combination of weaknesses that overcome the fragility of the weakened person. It is therefore false – and it is I, Jesus Christ, who say it – to attribute this disease to the deaths of vulnerable people when this disease alone cannot cause the greatest number to perish.

I know everything about this disease, its birth, its spread, its harmfulness, and I will judge the men who are responsible for it with the firmness and justice that such a homicide deserves. Those who bear this responsibility have harmed not only every man who has been impacted, but also to the divine work of creation. Their responsibility is immense and their punishment will be too.

Let the men who fall into this trap pray for their executioners and let them become aware of their fault before it is too late.

The order wanted by God

I am the Most High, Most Humble and Most Majestic Lord. All the adjectives that determine beauty, or noble and quality qualifiers are Mine because I possess all the Virtues, they all flow from Me. When a man is evil, he gets his evil spell from the demon. It's very simple, there are two forces, one good which comes from God and which is superior, the other bad, which comes from the devil and which is inferior.

The demon would so much like to take everything, to be the first, to push away all the others, but as he is evil, he cannot surpass the good. Good is superior, evil is inferior. The devil is below, God above, far above! So far that the demon can't even reach Him; then he attacks His servants, men.

My Soul was mistreated by demons at the moment when it had to leave My Body, and it was afraid. Fear is a situation, it is not intentional, it is not voluntary. My Soul was afraid of the demons who attacked it, and I fought with courage and will against them. Fear and courage are not opposed to each other, courage is a virtue, fear is the result of a dangerous situation. Fear is the awareness of a dangerous situation, courage generates the strength to dominate it, to fight it, to crush it.

Courage is a strength, fear is a weakness that must be mastered, dominated, not let it take over. When a man is afraid, virility is often an instinct that pushes him to fight it, not to let himself be frozen by it. When a woman is afraid, she often turns to the man to find refuge with him.

God created these natures so, the woman can have a manly attitude but she can also not have it. A man can have a virile attitude but he can also not have it. If the woman does not have it, she will be innocent, if the man does not have it, he will be guilty. For what ? Because it is written that man is the leader and woman his ally. It is the role of the leader to wage war and protect those for whom he is responsible; it is the role of the woman to watch over the children, over the home, over family harmony. The fact that everyone has their role brings the family together, each being as important and unique as the other.

A family without a father is decapitated, a family without a mother is decapitated, a family without children is sterile. When a widower or widow remarries, the family recomposes but the roles remain. The man remains the leader and the woman remains the light of the home.

If an already married man returns to another marital situation, there will be two lights and they disrupt each other. A lighthouse in the night is the safety of the sailor, two lighthouses cannot be. If the woman returns to a household after a first marriage, who will be the head? Is it the first husband or is it the second? Two leaders cannot be, the orders of one not being those of the second or the third... The captain of a ship is unique, the second is not captain.

It is thus that God, who organized mankind and creation as Himself, is the only Head, in goodness, mercy, meekness and Providence, and no one can take His place. God the Father to whom all is subject, the Son who received from the Father all power and all Justice, and the Holy Spirit who is One with the Father and the Son, in one same Will, one same Spirit and one only Wisdom.

Men created in the image and likeness of God benefit from the same laws, the same wills and the same submissions. With each other, in order, respect, submission and authority. Authority and obedience are the two fundamentals of society: if one or the other is lacking, society collapses. And it will collapse because it no longer knows how to command in justice or obey in humility.

Today, the organs of command are monopolized to serve the ambition of those who hold them, and those who should obey do not want to because they are individualistic and intractable. This is how human society has become uncontrollable, unruly and unpredictable. It refuses all discipline and to keep it, it must be controlled by fines and individual penalties.

As authority is illegitimate, that is to say desired neither by God nor by men, it asserts itself heavily and without concession. The authority of nations is illegitimate, the authority in families has dissipated, the supreme Authority of God is ignored. It is therefore necessary for me to come and restore order and reason to this disoriented world. It has lost its moral, religious and family values and, without them, its vitality would be lost.

I must restore the divine order in creation, the only vital, necessary and constructive order. May God be blessed, may His Work continue and may men be converted. That he be so.

Christian perfection

When My Heart is attacked, I am in pain and I am on the Cross, suffering. When My Kingdom is unknown, I desire to make it known and I have designed a website to make it known. I am the Almighty, the very Holy, the very august Master of the universe and despite this sovereign state, I remain humble and hidden. Those who know Me also know My Providence, My considerations, My responses to their difficulties.

I am the Almighty and I act as such while respecting the freedom of everyone. I gave them this freedom as an inalienable good and no one without great pressure is deprived of it. This freedom is necessary so that man can give Me his love, his dependence, his submission to My laws.

When a man loves and respects others, he submits out of love and this submission obedient and voluntary is very dear to Me. I ask all Mine: love Me and submit to My laws. I am your God but also your Master, your Lord and moreover your sweet Friend. I know everything about you: your loves, your tenderness, your addictions, everything that obliges you and everything that holds you. I know that your difficulties often arise from your own mistakes. I know that you may not be responsible for them but you are nevertheless guilty of them.

Responsibility is one thing, guilt is another. Responsibility is a state that makes you master of something, guilt is the result of your intentional or unwanted error. You are responsible, you are the leader; you are guilty, it is you who made the mistake. What do I mean by that? When you commit a sin, you are guilty, when you avoid it, you act responsibly for your soul and you guard against all harm. This obvious difference between responsibility and guilt is the mark of every man in the world. He is responsible for his soul while he may or may not be guilty of his sins. The saint will be responsible and will take care of the health of his soul, the sinner – also responsible – will not take care of it: he will be guilty.

The guilty sinner is often ignorant of his faults; while being responsible, he is ignorant. The ignorant wrongdoer commits the fault and, even if he can benefit from mitigating circumstances in the face of the fault, he commits it and he is guilty of it. Human justice invokes the exclusion of ignorance: “every citizen is supposed to know the law”. God's justice is less arbitrary, God knows how difficult it is for some to know the limits between good and evil, and He will absolve the sinner who has committed evil through certain, unfeigned ignorance. This sinner, despite divine absolution, cannot claim holiness because this requires knowledge which is a virtue, a gift of the Holy Spirit.

Thus the forgiven sinner is not necessarily a saint, but every saint is a forgiven sinner. Some saints did not commit serious faults during their life, others did, but all remain examples, models to follow in their conversion, in their holiness, in their quest for perfection, whatever their age, or their condition. Some are young, others old, some are rich but detached from their possessions, like Lazarus, the friend of Jesus Christ on earth, others deprived themselves of their inheritance, others were poor and destitute. , still others were healthy or ill.

The state of the disciple of Jesus Christ, his condition, is varied and diverse; God has no criterion except that of seeking His Will, His Love, His Perfection.

Jesus Christ was poor but not reduced to the last extremity, but if He had been, it would have been so. If, on the contrary, He had been rich and well regarded, that would have been good too. Whatever His condition was, it would have been fine. He chose one of the many possibilities in which He could have settled and the one chosen is the one in which He was. There's no judging, that's the one. The saints desired to imitate His self-sacrifice, His financial nakedness, His search for eternal goods rather than earthly goods, and the example He gave is certainly the best.

This is how the disciples of Christ prefer modesty to ostentation, humility to pride, gentleness to violence, discretion to volubility, poverty to wealth. Jesus Christ is their model, His perfection is their benchmark.

When the Lord Jesus spoke, He did so with assurance, with authority, with clarity, and the gift of speech is a great good. Jesus Christ is the Word of God, His Word was therefore perfect, scholarly, it was law. The ministers of Jesus Christ, the priests, in His image, are supposed to speak with competence and authority and their word is authentic. They thus have a great responsibility, they are the representatives of their Master and if they speak or act badly, it is as if they were devaluing the Greatness and the Righteousness of Our Lord Jesus Christ. Their word should be perfect in such a way that it responds to the ordinance of their Master: "Be perfect as your heavenly Father is perfect" (Mt 5:48).

This ordinance concerns not only the words of the ministers of Jesus Christ but also the behavior of all Christians: be perfect! Perfect in your speech, in your attitude, in your behavior, in your dealings with others. Perfect in everything, such is the search of every Christian, of every disciple of Our Lord Jesus Christ. Perfect in his thoughts, in his words, in his attitude, in his behavior.

Perfect always, perfect in everything, perfect with respect to all. As is the disciple, so is the saint.

Marriage, divorce

My Love for men is immense, so much greater than the greatest love on earth. Love is a magnet when it fills the heart of the one who receives it. This love is like a magnet and everyone who receives it is comforted by it. When I love, I give, when you love Me, I receive you.

Reciprocal love is invigorating, absent love is like a gray sky, charged and reproving.

When a human being gives his love and receives that of others in return, he is happy.

When he gives and receives nothing in return, he is weighed down. It is the love-exchange that gives life all its charm, all its happiness.

Lovers are happy, divorced people are not, and yet the protagonists wanted or agreed to divorce. I am not talking here about those who wanted a happy marriage, applied themselves to it but were not followed. In this, the sacrifice of love is a test and, like any sacrifice offered in peace of soul, Jesus Christ accepts it as any offering difficult but voluntary.

When divorce occurs in a household, it is a great sorrow for all members of the family. It is the culmination of a failure and each of the spouses is a failure. What could they have done to avoid this? What sacrifices have they not made? This is the question that many do not ask themselves. "I had rights and they were not respected"! Isn't that what we mean? What are these rights that are not respected? Is it a question of selfishness, of taking cover, of forgetting the other, of absences due to valid but not accepted reasons? What about all these failures of love, of understanding, of indulgence, of forgiveness? Have we not taken too much into account our own bitterness and forgotten the obligations, professional or otherwise, to which the spouse was bound? What is true love? Is it not the joy of others, the confidence of others, the tranquility of others? Is it love to want everything for yourself? Isn't it love to want everything for the other?

When you love, you don't count, says a saying. Yes, that's right, you have to be ready to put up with everything, to want the best for others and nothing for yourself if that is necessary.

The other first, then me. Would there be so many divorces if both parties thought of each other first? This single question would resolve so much disagreement! The other first, the children first, and me after them. When the relationship between spouses is new, everything is fine, everything is rosy and why? Because we generally think more of the other than of ourselves, in the heat of novelty. And then, the me, the ego takes over. And the marriage, in which we often don't pray together, begins to crack. The ego takes back its "rights", as if it had any!

Jesus Christ on the Cross did not invoke His rights; on the Cross, He asked His Father – and our Father – to forgive sinners because, He said, they do not know what they are doing. He forgave the good thief but the bad thief continued to think only of himself. He therefore insulted, uttered anathemas but nothing benefited him. The good thief, on the other hand, asked forgiveness and justified the Lord who, he said, was crucified without sin while they had deserved their sentence.

What a difference between goodness and malice! One is encouraging, comforting, the other is evil. It brings nothing, does not help, does not cheer.

Dear children, have your marriage blessed in the church, before God and before men, not only with an administration that classifies files. Marriage is natural, since the beginning of humanity it has been repeated from generation to generation, it is a work of generation so that humanity continues. If it were only a work of bringing together two beings, for them and only for them, it would be sterile. It is instituted for the generation and for humanity. She must therefore be generous, forgetful of herself and people Heaven with children of God, brothers and sisters of Jesus Christ in union with the Holy Spirit.

Pray as a family. If you've never done it, it's time to start doing it. If you put God at the center of your home, at the center of your lives, integrating Him into your daily activities, He will appease you, He will cherish you and happiness will enter your family.

The Holy Family is the most perfect example of a happiness of which God is the center, the objective, and to Whom one is totally submitted. May He be blessed in all the homes of the world; pray in all joys and difficulties. So be it.

I'm waiting for you

Yes, I will give the world peace after men have converted and there will be many who pray to Me and kneel in the passage of the Blessed Sacrament. In the past, the processions of the Blessed Sacrament were attended, the village populations all participated and the fervor was real. You remember it very well. And then, with the changes made by the Second Vatican Council, everything changed. Devotions to Jesus Christ and the saints fell into disuse and all occasions for veneration gradually faded away. There are no longer processions in the streets, people no longer kneel before Jesus Christ, nor at masses for those who are still relatively pious.

There are fewer and fewer priests, the seminaries are almost empty and the renewal of vocations is the opposite of what it should be: there are more priests dying than new ones being ordained. Priests disappear, men no longer remember God. They are already irreligious in their majority and if I do not intervene to catch them, they will all damn themselves.

I'm coming back, I'm happy to come back because I can't wait to find the love of My own again. I must convert them, bring them back to Me like the Good Shepherd who goes in search of all His sheep. It will be a great cleansing because those who do not want to return to Me will have to give way to My own. They will not enter the new Kingdom of God. You are therefore going to live through times of disarray and divine anger, because when the Master is angry, everyone is silent and does penance.

This is how I want you, My dearest children, contrite and penitent like the inhabitants of Nineveh who, at the word of Yahweh through the prophet Jonah, repented, did penance and returned to God.

It is time to convert, it is time to ask God for forgiveness for the sins of humanity, for the murders of the unborn, for the murders of the sick and the elderly, for the licentiousness and ideologies that reject Jesus -Christ, for selfishness, the so frequent pride, individualism and personalism. You behave like very spoiled people, you profit from the work of those who lived before you, who built cathedrals, beautiful churches, small chapels, convents and monasteries, all to the glory of God; you hardly use them anymore and would be incapable of building one.

You think about your daily lives, your pleasures, your comforts, your entertainment and you no longer think about your Sovereign Master, God and Lord. And yet He does not forget you, He is with you in every moment of your life; if He forgot you, your life would end. But you live, you enjoy, you quarrel, you seek to take advantage of everything that is accessible to you and you forget your eternal future. This future will catch up with you and when you are forced to think about it, maybe it will be too late?

Come to Me, come and kneel in your churches, come and ask forgiveness, approach the sacrament of penance, repent of your faults, of your forgetfulness of God, of your selfishness, of your not always honest diversions, of all that displeases God and which is often a cause of quarrels or enmity.

I will welcome you and give you all My Love so that you love God in return and escape the thief of souls, the demon, the Prince of your world.

I am coming soon, I will be with you, do not turn away. I am God and this God is good, infinitely good, you will not regret coming back to Him. I bless you.

Unite us to the Passion of Jesus Christ

In this time of Holy Week and the feast of My Resurrection, I delight in the faithful who will unite with My Passion and pray to the Eternal Father with Me. This week was for Me a time of great anguish because having taken flesh, I knew what was going to happen and I was already suffering from it.

Physical suffering was one thing and moral suffering was another. I was already wounded in My love for My creation, for men, and I keenly felt the enmity that the scribes, Pharisees and high priests bore Me. They did not know the slightest charity and they observed it neither towards Me nor towards the people. Their animosity was hateful and there was no point in me trying to appease them. The demons had taken up residence in their souls and they did not intend to be dislodged.

At the end of My public life, I even avoided them because I did not have to be taken by them before My time. This hour was decided from all eternity, I was Master of My Work and the redemption of humanity was planned as the Father in Heaven had planned and not otherwise. I desired as much as My heavenly Father that His Will be done, Our will was One but the humanity that I had taken as an aspect and as a human and divine person, possessed like any being of flesh the instinct of self-preservation which made it set aside any physical harm. I had to overcome this instinct linked to the flesh, accept suffering and overcome it.

This instinct which makes one flee in the face of wounds was natural and I had to fight the anguish of physical suffering as much as the anguish of My Soul in the face of the countless sins that I had to bear. I offered myself because of them and I asked forgiveness for everyone

two. I implored forgiveness from My Heavenly Father for each of them and the perfection of My Immolation got the better of each of them.

God the Father, infinitely wounded by the original fault then by the individual faults, was infinitely consoled and satisfied by My sacrificial offering. I offered Him a sacrifice in His measure, that of God, His infinite wound was healed and His Almighty Goodness was finally able to give himself totally to this redeemed humanity. Divine Mercy then flooded the souls of righteous in Limbo, of those in Purgatory and of men on earth. Only those who refused it did not have access to it.

May this Holy Week be for you, My children, to unite yourselves to My Passion, to the multiple physical and moral wounds that I endured for you, to suffer voluntarily with Me, to live in spirit every moment of this Holy Week, to take upon yourself also the sins of men, of your contemporaries, of those who do not know piety or have forgotten it, or do not understand it.

The fear of displeasing God and piety are the first two virtues granted to your souls by the Holy Spirit, and they are those for which you must ardently pray in this precise year, for yourselves and for your brothers, your friends, your acquaintances. , the people you meet and all those who pass in your field of vision.

Through My Passion, My Death and My Resurrection, I have acquired Redemption for you; therefore do the same for your fellow men, accompany Me on the Way of the Cross and offer for them and for yourselves these sufferings, these wounds, these sorrows and these insults with which I have been subjected. And when the time of Easter comes, thank Me because I have done what no one could do: satisfy for your sins, make you lovable in the sight of God the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, and open to you Gate of Heaven.

May the One and Triune God be blessed, loved and adored forever and ever. So be it.

Introduction to each day

I bless My own, those who put Me at the forefront of their concerns and who dismiss all opportunities that do not serve Me or include Me in their own right. The true Christian is the one who follows My Law and who organizes his life according to religious practice. "God first served" should be the refrain of every Catholic; that he be devoted like a father or mother who takes pains for his children before any other relationship. The duty of the Christian is that of the introduction to every day which I wish to repeat here:

Christian, remember that you have today:

A God to glorify,

A Jesus to imitate,

The Virgin and the saints praying,

The good Angels to honor,

A soul to save

A body to mortify,

Virtues to ask for,

Sins to atone for,

A paradise to win,

A hell to avoid,

An eternity to meditate,

A time to spare,

A neighbor to build,

A world to grasp,

demons to fight,

passions to destroy,

*Perhaps death to suffer,
And judgment to suffer.*

I ask you, My children, to recite this list regularly because it has the merit of reminding us of the daily duties of the Christian.

Why did God create mankind?

I am the Most High, the Almighty, I created Heaven and earth. From My Abode, Heaven, I direct all that is. From Heaven, I look at what is, what I have created, what I have invented and I am happy with everything. My creation is grandiose, dizzying for those who are part of it, immense for those who inhabit it and yet in every second I can be there everywhere and constantly.

I took on flesh on earth and wanted to be a man among men. However, I surpass them so much that My Humility in making Myself one of them is beyond comprehension.

How could God, so great, so powerful, so extraordinary, be able to take on the human aspect when He was so much greater, so much more intelligent, so much more competent, so much more exemplary?

The reason is that God is God and He wanted to have brothers and sisters like Him to have them eternally with Him in blessed eternity. He created the human race the same as He already was. By creating humanity and giving the role of parents to Adam and Eve, He wanted to add a family to Himself out of love and generosity. He then created them similar to Him, physically, and He gave them free consent because love, true love, is a will and this, this will, must be free to be personal.

He then gave the man and the woman the full freedom of their will, in order to love Him totally, fully and, in return, He loved them as brothers since He had created them in His Image and Likeness. . He could have created them directly in His Heaven, as He had done for His angels, but being Himself Pure Spirit and Lord, Jesus Christ, God and

Man of all times, He wanted men among whom He could take His human nature and unite them to Himself for Eternity.

Just as He gave full freedom to all His angels, to love and serve Him freely, so He gave to men and to all His creatures, the greatest freedom, each to his measure and according to his faculties.

The angels used it, some for themselves, others for God, and among men Adam and Eve used it for themselves. Their descendants were all affected by their grave fault but to take His Humanity in this seriously decadent world, Jesus Christ reserved an Immaculate Mother for Himself because God could not unite with a decadent humanity.

The Most Blessed Virgin Mary accepted to be the Mother of God, by the freedom of her own will and, however Immaculate she was, she never had the slightest personal satisfaction. She accepted in all humility the role that God entrusted to her and she prayed every day to the Almighty Father to be equal to this task and this signal favour.

Jesus Christ took His Humanity into it, as He had decided in all times and, although taken in the time of the earth, it was eternal in the Heavens. This is how the reality of Jesus Christ, God and Man, is eternal, dominating all times, not dependent on any time. Jesus Christ, Our Lord, was, is and will be in Eternity who dominates all time.

By taking our humanity, He gave us His divinity, He wanted to lead us to Heaven and gave us His teaching. The teaching of Jesus Christ is the only one that is valid, the only one that can lead us to our goal, Heaven. If we take advantage of the life given to us to enjoy earthly goods, then we live for ourselves while the Love of God should be our only goal; we were created for Him, for nothing else.

If we love earthly life and the goods it offers us, they are only a pale reflection of what eternal life offers us. To help us seek only celestial goods, God gave us through Moses the Ten Commandments, a lasting code for achieving the happiness of the elect in Heaven.

Is it necessary for us to comply? Yes, it is absolutely necessary. Is this an obligation? It is not an obligation because we are free to choose it or not to choose it. If we choose it, it is our freedom, we will please God who promises us extraordinary and eternal happiness. If we reject it, it is our freedom and, like the fallen angels, we will fall from our purpose and be unhappy for eternity.

We are created for Heaven; if we do not strive to take the necessary means to be received there, we will miss the goal of our life, the happiness to which we are called and we will be disappointed, unhappy, reprobate forever.

May the Joy of the Lord, His Goodness and His Gentleness be with you always. So be it.

Pray to be faithful

I am the Most High, I love My children with a Love that never weakens. This Love is eternal, it is warm, comforting, fully willing to restore all things to the immutable Truth. If we trust in him, he is the Truth, the Way and the Life; in Him is all truth, all rectitude, immutable and divine eternity.

Eternity is God, without Him there would be nothing. Neither life, nor creature, nor world, nor heavens. The universe would not be, nor the space in which the universe evolves. Nothing, like an absent light, non-existent waves, worlds yet to be created. This absence of everything is impossible to imagine because nothing is less than emptiness, it is less than the absence of something, it is "nothing". This nothing is an illusion because God being, He is everything; He is the Creator and all divine attributes are eternal.

God is Creator, He creates; He is divine, He is eternal; He is Good, He communicates His Goodness; He is Love, He must diffuse it; He is Merciful towards men, He forgives them provided they ask Him. The men who love Him, He returns it to them in His measure, that is to say beyond what they can expect. Divine Mercy is inconceivable for men who tend to hold grudges, to return evil for evil, to slander, to accuse.

Worse, they condemn without knowing, they accuse without proof, they speak lightly; they are negligent, they do not reflect and they allow themselves to be influenced by fine talkers.

The men to whom power is entrusted are generally no more cautious, they themselves obey those who put them in place and democracy is an easily manipulated system. It is enough to have the hand and the men bend to it in such a way that the expression “eat from hand” is self-explanatory. The men of power themselves have orders to follow, no one is free except the righteous who lives by faith (Heb 10:38).

This is how, My children, in this time of deprivation of your freedom, you remain free if you keep the faith. Faith will set you free, you will only fear displeasing God, God alone is your Master and He will lead you to green pastures.

There will come a time when leaders will no longer control their subjects because they will have lost their trust. Then it will be a time of greater restrictions because the weak run rampant when they are not heard. So they will crack down but My righteous one will live by faith. Faith is submission to God in keeping His laws and His Commandments. Love one another, do each other a favor because times will get tough and it will be necessary to help each other.

Love one another among brothers in the faith. Be careful, be prudent towards those who are not your brothers in faith: they will not necessarily be charitable, they will think more about what they believe to be their interests, you will be their friend one day but no longer the following day. Keep faith, serenity, good will and charity. Don't lend with the intention of recovery, lend, yes, but if the loan is not returned, that will be fine too. May your goodness be real as was that of the Lord Jesus Christ, as was that of Saint Joseph, as was that of the most holy Mother of God.

I love you, My very dear children, you are Mine and I want you in My divine Abode at the end of your days. Your life on earth is the preparation for this eternal life and when you are there, you will be happy with the trials endured with joy, the difficulties crossed with a smile, death welcomed with happiness.

Yes, My very dear children, some of you will enter Eternity before others. Likewise, some of you will enter the Kingdom of the new earth while others will have already left for the blessed Eternity. If you are among the first to leave for the divine Abode, you will be happy, very happy, and do not fear this departure: it is the goal of your passage on earth.

If you go through the time of earthly trials and enter, by divine choice, into the new kingdom of the Lord Jesus on earth, the Kingdom of the Thousand Years and the restoration of the religion of Jesus Christ on earth, may it God's choice for you be a blessing and the opportunity to thank the Lord a thousand times for this blessing.

Whatever happens, in Heaven you will be with God, on earth you will be among His faithful; and when the time comes for you to leave the earth, if you have been faithful, you will join your Father in Heaven and your loved ones in a happiness like no other.

Be faithful, pray to be faithful, see Christ Jesus in His Passion: He was faithful. He is your model, He preceded you and He shows you the way: humility, gentleness, modesty, strength and endurance. He didn't let go but He remained gentle and good. Pontius Pilate found nothing in Him that could accuse or condemn him, the Lord was kind to him, He spoke words to him that he could have understood. He understood some of them, others were hidden from him because he should have listened better than he did. He did not condemn Jesus Christ but he delivered him into the hands of the Jews.

The Lord was therefore not condemned, He was handed over and He Himself said it at the Last Supper: "Take and eat, this is My Body, which will be given for you" (Lk 22:19). It is He, the Lord, who gave His Body and His Blood for the life of the world. He was delivered by the Roman authority, He was condemned by the Jewish authorities who had no power to put Him to death. The Lord offered Himself as a sacrifice, by His Will and by the free course of the wickedness of His enemies, to save souls and allow them access to the divine Abode of Heaven.

It is out of Kindness that the Lord wished to open Heaven to His friends, to His brothers, to His faithful, to His chosen ones. He never ceased to prepare us for it and now, again, He comes to warn us and bring us His help for the times to come.

Be good, My children, be faithful, be gentle but don't give up. You have faith, she will save you.

My Will be done and My grace remain with you. I bless you and love you.
Be at peace.

Continue your penances

The earth was created with divine blessing, in the sense that in the early days everything was according to His will. Then the Angel of Creativity vitiated and depraved her. It is because of him and the fault of Adam and Eve that the earth was depreciated, that it was cursed by God and produced thorns and thistles (Gn 3, 18). Some parts remained good by grace and because God, Good and Almighty, did not allow their total degradation.

He destined man for the cultivation of the earth while Cain became a builder of cities (Gn 4, 17). The big city is a human creation and it is conducive to many deviations. It is the ground which is intended for the man, the ground which is favorable with the culture and the provisioning of the men. The proof of the malevolence of the townspeople is that those who are at the source, the peasants, are so pressured that they are poor and those who ransom them are free from want. Men have not changed since the dawn of time, wolves take advantage of sheep and sheep, shorn, remain under the guardianship of those who exploit them.

This time of exploitation of man by man is nearing its end, the time of murder, injustice, oppression, defamation and injustice is nearing its end.

My children, be sober, Lent has just ended but continue your penances because the world needs your sacrifices. Think of the souls who are in purgatory and who are doing great, very great penances. Theirs are immensely greater than those you can make on earth, so don't hesitate; prepare the times that come by your sacrifices, by your prayers and by your fidelity to God.

When the tocsin of the interruption of this century will sound, that is to say when the earth will be renewed by the will of God, you will be happy with all that you have offered Me, with all your freely consented penances, even those that have been imposed on you. This time is current, it is now. You have started the prologue and its development will follow its course.

When God decides, the angels will give way to the demons and you will all be tested by their destructive and vengeful action. The angels will stay with those who pray to them, so pray already, pray a lot. Peace be with you and keep a peaceful and confident heart. I love you, I do not abandon you.

Christian civilization

I am your Lord and your God, I am the Master of the world, the universe and all that is. I decide everything, I do everything and nothing is done without My authorization or My satisfaction.

When a good is done, I am happy, but when an evil is, I allow it but deplore it. The evil is committed to the freedom of the creature, I gave him this freedom and it is his. I do not condone this evil but it is My Providence to let evil be done for a greater good.

Evil generally has negative consequences, but My Providence, which sees all things, brings the best good out of it. Thus an earthquake which causes ruins and disasters is an opportunity for men to rebuild. When everything is repaired, renewal is an opportunity for a new beginning for the survivors. The dead are in their destiny, the living are renovating and restoring for a new stage. The same goes for the earth: the destruction that comes will be an opportunity for God to renovate it because it will have been too affected by sin to be reborn on its own. God repairs what man destroys, Jesus Christ on the Cross repaired the inextinguishable fault of corrupt man. It is God who repairs and He always does so, He the very Good, the very Generous, the always Healing.

Man's trespass against God was mortal, and God's healing of man was regenerative. Everything God does is positive, uplifting, healing. Everything man does, if he makes himself independent of his Master and Lord, Father and Almighty God, is degrading. Man is powerless when he operates without God, he is achiever when he trust in God.

The Middle Ages was a time of construction to the glory of God and the beautiful cathedrals were all medieval. Later great churches lost their brilliance and grandeur because they were no longer designed for the greater glory of God. The cathedrals of modern times do not have the quality, the depth, nor the exemplarity of those of the Christian Middle Ages.

Christian civilization was a model of beauty, balance and piety. No civilization comes close to it. Ancient civilizations may have been great but they remain inferior to Christian civilization which produced masterpieces and which also made numerous intellectual discoveries. God helps the one who prays, He leaves to himself the one who is not His disciple.

Holiness is not reserved for an elite

I need men, they need Me even more and our union can only take place according to My Law. A man who loves desires the good of those he loves, and therefore I can only want the best good for each of you. It's so simple, but evil is so bad that it thwarts all virtues.

Each virtue has its opposite vice but in Heaven this does not come into play: there are only virtues. The harmony there is perfect and society in Heaven is united as much as the Son is united with the Father and the Holy Spirit. When a soul enters Heaven, it is holy and it marvels at everything it finds there: joy, peace, understanding, mutual aid, understanding, union, variety, beauty. , imagination, expansion, and all that delights the heart and soul. In Heaven, virtue is essential and, to exercise it perfectly, it is necessary for beings touched and degraded by original sin and by their own faults, to practice it constantly and without respite.

It is thus, My children, that you must constantly compare yourselves to Saint Joseph, to My most holy Mother and even to Me during My lifetime on earth. Would he (she) have said this like that or otherwise? The more you compare yourself to the members of the Holy Family, the more you will imitate them and become holy.

Saint Joseph was a saint and he had a normal life: he raised his son, he worked for his family, he was a father, a head of the family, a husband. My Most Holy Mother, likewise, was an ordinary woman in the sense that she married young, was a mother, lived within her family and her city. She had friends, girlfriends, acquaintances and duties of daily life; she was perfect in everything. Try to apply yourself to imitate them and to have between you the same reports that they had in their daily life. You will quickly become saints and you will be happy forever.

To be holy is not reserved for an elite. To be holy is for each one of you, because it is the goal of your life, of your eternal future. To be holy is like the blossoming of the flower which has received everything to be beautiful and admired. Its petals are special and different from all other flowers, each flower is unique and when it is beautiful, its attraction is real. Its color is awake, fluorescent but natural and the fragrance it gives off wafts around it.

Each saint is a flower for God and for his brothers and sisters in Heaven where everything is delight and exception.

human sacrifice

The world is going to waste and those who realize it are not many. The majority of men no longer pray or if they do, it is not the true God they pray to.

The prayers on carpets are addressed to a God whom they call such but who does not exist. This God so called is superior to them and if he exists, as he sometimes manifests himself, it is a demon of the superior hierarchy who passes himself off as their God. This demon is the Prince of this world, he is the same being as the one invoked by secret sects or animists.

All those who invoke a god other than Our Lord Jesus Christ, Son of God and God Himself within the Most Holy Trinity, these invoke the Prince of demons, Prince of Lies and Prince of this world. He is proud to be honored as God and he demands human sacrifices like the gods of Antiquity or the religions of voodoo and similar. Their sacrifices are revolting because they take the lives of the victims with cruelty and in fear.

Currently the victims are mainly of tender age. They are easier to seize and those who kidnap them are often protected. The god Moloch openly attracted to him and the Prince of the demons used this devotion to attack God in His creation.

Currently, the sacrifices are not known to the general public, but they are known and feared by those who have been instructed in them. This minority is not in the media and, consequently, these sacrilegious and murderous misdeeds remain in the domain of the unsaid.

I will put an end to these dreadful and secret practices and those who are guilty of them will not escape divine Justice. This time is coming soon because it will coincide with the renovation of the earth and with the piety of humanity, the one who will survive the trials that will soon overwhelm Earth.

Humanity will then be beneficent and happy in life, it will be faithful and fervent.

Creation and Last Endings

When I created the earth, the sky and the universe, I did it with perfect love. I loved My work, I wanted it to be beautiful and similar to the Heavens, the divine Abode. This temporal work was created on the model of the invisible, smaller, more sensitive and more visual. I created time because it was necessary as an introduction to the divine, to eternity. Time is immovable from creation, it conditions and exceeds the possibilities of the human being who is born, lives and reaches through it the moment of his departure from the visible world.

In Heaven there is no time and, while being able to act, to move, to grow in knowledge and in perfection, the saint is eternal. Everything he says, does and produces is done in a time called 'eternal present', but which nevertheless allows the before and the after. This before and this after in the eternal present is necessary otherwise eternity would be static, immobile, but God is the eternally Living. He therefore acts, He watches, He rewards the good and, as in Heaven evil is absent, He is always happy with His own, He encourages them, guides them and rewards them. He also creates because He is Creator and His creations are like Him, infinite. There is nothing in Heaven but happiness, creativity, goodness, admiration of the saints among themselves and of the saints for God. They are active, loyal, pious, fervent and always devoted. Heaven is a place as it is a state, luminous, beautiful, joyful and divine.

Purgatory is different. It is destined to disappear when the earth also disappears, and it was conceived after original sin. It was not to exist because man, created in a permanent state of sanctifying grace, should not have undergone purification or satisfaction for sins after his departure from the earth. God permitted this intermediate state between earth and Paradise out of goodness and anticipation of Redemption.

Before the suffering and death of the Lord Jesus on the Cross, purgatory had a relay for purified souls: they had to wait in the limbo of the Righteous for the moment to enter following Jesus Christ into Paradise. This limbo has since disappeared and this is how purgatory will disappear at the end of the world because it will no longer be necessary, God having achieved the outcome that He had proposed by creating the earth and the heavens, the firmament and the universe.

Limbo of the Righteous was necessary and, since they were able to leave them to enter following the Lord in paradise and in Heaven, their necessity is no longer justified and they vanished to exist only in memory. of the righteous who had their rest there.

What will happen to the other limbos, those of beings having neither sin nor sanctifying grace and who, therefore, cannot have a part with the Lord God? These beings belong to the same case as the pagans of good will who, not having known God, perhaps behaved with natural goodness and generosity, but the word of Jesus Christ is infallible: "If you do not eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, you will not have life in you. Whoever eats My flesh and drinks My blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day" (Jn 6:53-54), and also "He who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who gave Him. sent" (Jn 5:23), and further "If you knew Me, you would also know My Father" (Jn 8:19).

It is therefore necessary to know the Lord Jesus and, in order to go to Heaven, it is necessary to receive the Eucharist worthily. Those who are good but unbaptized and unbelieving in the Lord Jesus Christ have no Life in them. Those who have received baptism (the sacrament, baptism of desire or that of blood) and who have manifested their faith in God, Father Son and Holy Spirit, will receive the grace of Eternal Life. The others, those who have not received this grace will certainly receive God's Mercy, because God is Merciful and His Plans for each one are infinitely good, infinitely loving, infinitely just. We must not doubt the perfection of divine Love and if the Lord does not yet reveal this mystery to us, He knows what He is doing and why He is doing it. His charity, His goodness, His love, His mercy and His justice are perfect and never conflict with each other.

Let us therefore have confidence in His Almighty Power which infinitely surpasses human shortcomings, the imperfections and ignorance of man.

May Christians, those who believe in Him, who trust in Him and who are nourished by the Holy Eucharist, pray for all those who do not have this grace and who, by this very fact, are spiritually handicapped.

And finally, there is the darkness of hell where go and will go all those who have rejected God, Father Son and Holy Spirit, and all the others, unbelievers, but whose heart and soul God knows and who are not his. May the Peace and Love of God be with you, My children.

Be pious and fervent because the lukewarm and the impious are not Mine. I bless you and love you.

Illegitimate orders

In a short time, the drama will fall on men, in a short time they will know that God is their Master and Lord. This time is near and My people sense it. They realize that times are not good, that their freedom is controlled, that their families are put under pressure and they do not feel safe. They would like the return of a certain carefreeness that the pandemic, or what we call it, has stifled and they realize that Christian life is disappearing because priests have been slowed down in their ministry and the faithful away from the house of God, a place of respect and devotion to Him.

They will have to repent before God and before their faithful for having thus abandoned them during these weeks of confinement while other priests have mobilized not to abandon their flock. This difference in attitude between the priests is noteworthy and, as in the times of revolutions, some priests remained with their faithful, others

No.

And you, My children, have you remained with your God during these weeks and months of isolation? Did you visit him during your free time? do you have it asked to help you in your duty of state: your family life, professional and other responsibilities? Or did you put it in the closet waiting for better days?

The Lord Jesus knows the souls and hearts of everyone and if you have somewhat forgotten Him during these days, weeks and months of confinement, it is more than time to come to your senses and return to Him. The Lord Jesus is so necessary in your daily life that you must include Him in all your tasks. He loves you and only asks for your love in return.

Loving is an exchange, a presence, advice, comfort, light, rest. To love is to give oneself to the loved one and the more we truly love, the more we give of ourselves. Jesus, the Master of the world, gave himself to this world for its Redemption and what does He receive in exchange? Many churches closed, attendance at services reduced in number due to inappropriate reduction orders, when the churches, the House of God, should have been overflowing and the Lord, Savior of the world, is the doctor par excellence of hearts , bodies and souls.

My children, do not allow yourselves to be surprised by illegitimate orders any longer! Go, fill the churches because it is there, with God, your Master and your Father, that you will be relieved.

God blesses those who come to Him and if sometimes a devotee or another is scolded for his presence in a church, let him know that God approves of him, He is happy with him and his reward will be great in Heaven.

Do not be afraid, God is above human laws, His laws exceed those, iniquitous, of men and the martyrs of the first centuries defied them with courage, perseverance and faith.

As My most holy Mother said to Bernadette of Lourdes: "I do not promise you to be happy in this world but in the other", so be fervent, courageous and faithful.

I bless you, My dearest children, and I love you.

Pay attention to the signs of the times

When I write for the world, I teach it the Truth as I did during My life on earth. I have preached the truth in various ways, clearly and in parables, and I have never varied. My teaching was new without being so, it was a continuation of the truths taught by the prophets, but the love of God was highlighted like never before. The Catholic religion, unlike all the religions that preceded it, is a religion of love. Not a pale and passive love, but a demanding love which asks man to love God in words and in actions, in works and in charity. God's love is ardent, passionate but controlled, demanding and charitable. We can't love half-heartedly, we don't give half-heartedly, we get involved, we don't back down. When we love, we give and we give of ourselves, everything we hold back comes from a lack of love, comes from selfishness.

The Lord Jesus loved perfectly, he taught without respite, he tired himself to bring the Word of God to all the towns from north to south and from east to west; and when the harvest was ready, He offered Himself on the Cross to atone for the sins of all mankind. He left behind him the apostles and the Holy Spirit who sanctifies the Catholic Church and vivifies her until the end of the world.

Evil is not removed from creation, no, but the means to overcome it have been entrusted to the Holy Church. She has the seven sacraments and she received the mission as a mother, to raise her children to holiness and to give them the means to do so.

You, My children, are also her children, I am the Head of the Holy Church which is My spouse, your mother. You trust her and you are right, but if your mother strays from the right path, you who are her children have the right to rescue her and bring her back.

on the path to truth. Reread the words of My Most Holy Mother at La Salette, in 1846, she has spoken clearly and the announced times are your present. My servant Melanie, the recipient of his words, was persecuted for the rest of her life, finding little welcome and acceptance of his words. Even today, churchmen in their great majority, while recognizing this place of appearance of My Mother, do not reflect on the scope of its warnings and do not amend to comply with them. My Mother in La Salette appeared crying and the two children who saw her were alarmed.

The current situation in the Holy Catholic Church is alarming and there are no days when one hears statements that do not conform to My teaching. My ecclesiastical sons many have forgotten the teaching of the Holy Catholic Church, many preach according to their feelings and no longer according to sound theology or sound morality.

My love for men is such that I won't let the world go to ruin so that I died on the Cross to save him. Saint Augustine of happy memory wrote:

If you procrastinate, there is no turning back on our part; if your avenging arm strikes us, we are repulsed.

In chastisements we confess our faults; but no sooner have you gone than our tears are already forgotten.

*If your arm lowers we promise everything; but does the sword remain suspended?
We no longer keep our promises.*

If you happen to strike, our cries of pity rise up to you; barely have you forgiven us, when we already provoke your just vengeance again.

Ah! Lord, here before you are confessed guilty people: if you do not pardon us, we know, a just sentence will be handed down to us.

Yes, My children, be attentive to the signs of the times. I will come like a thief, not for those who are watching, but for others who do not expect what is coming. I'm coming soon, yes, I'm coming.

May the love of God be rooted in your souls and rejoice because I am coming, I am practically there!

May God protect France

Yes, I am the Life, "the way, the truth and the life" and no one goes to the Father without going through Me. Religions other than Christian which claim to honor one God, do not honor Him because one cannot honor the Father without honoring neither the Son nor the Holy Spirit, since the Father the Son and the Holy Spirit are one and the same. God.

To address the Father, we must address the Son in communion with the Holy Spirit and it is in the Holy Trinity that we adore God perfectly. I came to earth as a man but also as God and he who does not recognize Me for God does not recognize My Trinitarian reality.

To know God or to know a person requires contact with him. I, Jesus Christ, have made Myself known and those who know Me, pray to Me or to the Father or the Holy Spirit, thus praying to God the Unique and the Almighty. Those who do not want to know Me as God cannot pray to the Father nor to the Holy Spirit, and those who say they do do not know that they are saying false.

The Father and the Son are One and if we pray to the One, we also pray to the Other, and the Holy Spirit, while recognizing the property of the Persons and the divine Unity.

The religion which says it adores a single God in a single entity, an unknown entity because it neither speaks nor makes itself known except through a book full of errors, is itself in error.

This religion is not worth dwelling on, it is false, it is vengeful, it is destructive and it is boastful. Its followers believe themselves to be elected and they are, but of their true mystifier, the Prince of demons. They believe themselves superior to other men whom they disdain, despise and hold for nothing. These qualifiers also designate their master and lord to whom they sacrifice the said infidels. The death of these so-called infidels is a source of joy to them and the more they kill, the more they believe they are pleasing their God. This is how these people possessed by the Prince of this world are about to rise up and wage war in order to make their master and demon reign.

When this people rises and all of France is besieged from within, may My children be in peace. They need not fear anything, I am with them. Let them be careful, let them take care to protect themselves as best as possible in their homes but let them remain with My presence within them, in the temple of their body, the dwelling place of the Holy Spirit. May they be in a state of grace and peace. May they attend the sacraments and churches while maintaining appropriate precautionary measures. I am with them, let them not fear.

What must happen is necessary because France and the countries around it have sinned and the nations cannot escape the sentence of divine punishment. Cardinal Mercier of eminent memory warned against the sins of nations. The nations are of the temporal order and will be punished according to the temporal order. Men will be punished or rewarded in the spiritual order but not nations.

May God protect France, may the Saints of France protect it, may the Patron Saints of each country protect their country and may all convert and become again the kingdoms of God and the most holy Virgin Mary. This is the aim of the punishments which will fall on the nations: that they convert and return to the public practice of the only true religion, the holy Catholic religion, that which Jesus Christ founded on the Cross and with which He will be there until the end of the world. Amen, Amen.

Human rights

May My Love be with Mine, I am their Master and their God. When a man is ignorant of his God, He despises him and speaks lightly of him. When a man is ignorant of his God, He may be respectful to that which he does not know, but he will often be rather negative. Why rather negative and not rather positive? Men not instructed by God believe themselves to know their own lives and generally what they do not know does not interest them either. Modern society has eradicated the presence of God among men but as there remain in this society many traces of Christian civilization, they consider them archaic and obsolete.

Notre-Dame de Paris burned and the society wants to rebuild it. Is it out of respect for God and His most holy Mother? For some, yes, for others, no. For the latter, Notre-Dame is a masterpiece of architecture, it is a monument of Paris, it is a historical emblem; and even if the Catholic religion still has a place in society, it is more for human society than for God that they want its restoration.

It is time for the true Catholic religion to regain its rights in the religious monuments of France and elsewhere, and for the religion of Human Rights, often cited by Pope John Paul II, to give way to the religion of rights. of God.

Pope John Paul II spoke so often about human rights and he preached these human rights during his many trips around the world. He came from a country, Poland, where communism still extended its pressure and human rights were like a justification of freedom in the countries of Eastern Europe where, precisely, all freedom was under guardianship. Human rights were a discourse heard in these countries without freedom because the freedom is a gift from God to man and indeed to every living creature.

In preaching the Rights of Man, the Pope called the communist countries to freedom, but in the other countries of the world, these rights resounded for what they really are: the independence of man with regard to God ; if man has rights, God should take them into account and man should be able to impose them. But this message is not the message of Jesus Christ, who came to earth to make God known to men and call them to holiness. He preached charity, the honor to be given to God above all others, He said: be perfect as your Heavenly Father is perfect (Mt 5, 48), and He offered Himself on the Cross to open Heaven to men who did not have access to it.

Freedom is a gift from God, everything that man is and has, he gets from God. God don't owes him nothing but He gave him everything. Man has no rights over God and the Rights of man are laws made by man for himself, they do not come from God who gave him given the Ten Commandments.

God commands and the man who strives for holiness conforms to His Law. Human Rights are not a divine law, they are a human rule to which God is not bound. He has no duty towards man except that He created him out of Love and so that he might participate in His blissful eternity. His Love is free, He created the world to create life and for men to be happy with Him eternally. Man has no 'rights' towards God, if not that of recognizing this Love and giving it to Him in return.

After having been the apostle of human rights and freedoms, this same pope excommunicated the bishops who wanted to maintain the freedom of the Roman and Latin Catholic holy mass, that which had been granted by Pope Saint Pius V for all time and in perpetuity (Bull 'Quo Primum Tempore', 1570). Was he right or wrong to excommunicate them?

The history of the Holy Church will judge and has already done so, in a way, since the following pope, Benedict XVI, lifted this excommunication without requiring any compensation.

Therefore, even within the holy Catholic Church, there may be errors committed, but they will always be repaired. It is the mark of the holiness of the Church which, like its Master and Spouse, the Lord Jesus Christ, repairs human faults and absolves them. But the Holy Church, although holy, is composed of fallible men who must all strive for holiness.

The day is awaited when Holy Mass will once again be heard in all the churches and the joy of the faithful will be great to find themselves united in faith and charity.

May Christ the King reign, may He reign and may He be revered and worshiped at all times and in all places.

Penance

When the new world is the reality of time, not a day will pass without Me being praised in the hearts of Mine. My saints in Heaven perpetually praise Me, I am in their thoughts at all times. A man loving his wife and children, a woman loving her husband and children, likewise have them constantly in her thoughts. So it will be for all men about Me in this new world. I will be the goal and object of all thoughts, they will pray to Me with family or alone in their occupations. They will offer Me their work, whatever it may be, they will pray before and after their meal, in the morning when waking up, in the evening when going to bed and all their actions will be thought out to please Me and do the best possible, like saint Joseph in his workshop or like My most holy Mother in her daily life.

This application to please Me will make their actions fertile and productive and everything they undertake under My gaze and with My blessing will be positive and enriching. My gaze will rest on them happily and I will be happy with their accomplishments.

When one of My children marries, he will do so with the grace of marriage and his offspring will be baptized and brought up in accordance with My laws. When these grow up, they will have the healthy joy of pure children and their games will be of good quality. When they will have grown up, they will work, they will be conscientious and their gaiety will focus only on what is healthy or holy. Life will be harmonious, sins will be confessed, and repentance real and constructive. Men will be men, women will be women, and children will grow up in balanced and strong environments.

When will this time be yours, My children? It comes soon but it will be the culmination of a time of penance and conversion. The Magi coming to adore Me after a long journey also did penance. Their provisions were insufficient because the travel time was roughly anticipated and they fasted before finding Me. I myself fasted before beginning My public life and the holy Catholic Church had established, following My example, a 40-day fast each year in order to celebrate Easter with respect and dignity.

My children, penance is of great benefit to your souls, it controls passions, desires and excesses. Who is still fasting today? Ecclesiastical discipline has somehow suppressed it except for 2 days a year, but the sins are so numerous that we would have to return to these 40-day fasts to learn to curb your desires, your desires, your passions. Ecclesiastical fasting allows for one balanced meal per day and one snack in the morning and evening. Is it a real fast that would deprive you of all food during these 40 days? This is not the case; ecclesiastical fasting enjoins sobriety and modesty.

Return to this practice and you will see the physical and moral good you will derive from it. Add regular prayer times and your life will change. You will be new men and new women, more devoted, more lovable, more charitable towards your neighbor and more respectful of God. The ecclesiastical rules of the past punctuated life throughout the year and public life was also punctuated by liturgical feasts and great processions in towns and countryside. The children took part on Wednesday afternoons, or during their free afternoon, in the patronages directed by the parish priest of their village; they were neither idle nor ignorant of their catechism. All of life was modeled on the religious calendar, festivals and vacations as well.

Today, the weekend begins on Saturday and the Sunday Mass on Saturday evening has been instituted for the faithful who could not attend Mass on Sunday for professional or private reasons. But the more you give, the more you take, and the habit of no longer going to mass on Sundays quickly turned into no mass at all. European countries quickly abandoned the church, the sacraments and religious practice, and it did not take 50 years to secularize Catholic countries. Currently, Christians who still practice no longer fast, they are relatively ignorant of Christian doctrine and only practice at the rate of 2 or 3% of the population. In other words, Catholicism has lived and is considered outdated by many.

Chastity before marriage is discredited, contraception is the norm, the ends of marriage are upset. Free unions have multiplied and abortion, which is the murder of a child, has become a right. Euthanasia becomes legitimate because the suffering would be intolerable. When we no longer respect the rights of God, we do not respect His laws either.

This is how the Commandments of God are abolished and Christian civilization destroyed.
Churches burn or are ransacked, cemeteries vandalized and the laws of the republic prevail over divine laws.

Can the Lord God accept this? No, I say, I do not accept it and I will leave the evil destroy everything before renovating My work and restoring its luster and vitality.

So do not be afraid, My children, in the face of the flight of Christian values, keep them carefully for yourselves because, after the destruction of everything that must be destroyed, the rebirth of catholicity will be more beautiful than it was before. never been, the earth will be adorned for her and all humanity will be raised to the dignity of the children of God.

May this message be, for you who read it, a warning and an alert in order to become, if you are not already, good Christians who are faithful and assiduous to the Law of God, as He wills it and not as as you would like.

May He be blessed, loved, obeyed and respected. So be it.

Virtues

My Heart bleeds before the misdeeds of those who should submit to My laws but who cancel and distort them. The world has become a monster in which I neither recognize nor find Myself. Human laws have upset human nature, it is no longer governed by clean and healthy laws but by selfish and harmful laws.

Marriage, which is a perpetual bond between a man and a woman in order to have a stable home and numerous Christian and well-behaved children, has been reduced to a contract that can be broken at any time according to the whims or ambitions of the husband. Children are orders that we make to nature or with the help of medical science and free gift, generosity and the spirit of sacrifice do not enter into the matrimonial relationship. Children are a "choice", living together is revocable and when elderly parents can no longer support themselves or provide services, they are eligible for the State to cover their old age.

Social life is a game of fun or disputes, work is necessary to have a life of comfort and when difficulties come, they are evacuated as much as possible by methods of ease or rejection.

I did not create man and woman for this behavior. I created them in My image and likeness and gave them My law, the Ten Commandments, and My teaching to elevate them above what is visible, to give them the love of virtue and sacrifice from which happiness and harmony flow.

Man and woman, created in My image and likeness, are made for happiness eternal but this can only be obtained by the exercise of virtue. There are 3 theological virtues which have God as their direct and principal object: faith, hope and charity. There are 4 moral virtues main, called cardinal virtues: prudence, justice, strength and temperance. From them flow all the other moral virtues, the main ones of which are 7: humility, obedience, gratitude, patience, meekness, penance and chastity.

It is good to remember the list of these virtues and to examine at the end of each day how they were exercised. It is the Catholic duty of examination of conscience daily. The examination of our attention to the exercise of the virtues is a royal staircase towards our elevation to holiness:

- 1.- Humility, that great virtue that the Blessed Virgin fully exercised.
- 2.- Obedience, that virtue against which we so often rebel when a simple 'yes' would soften so many situations.
- 3.- Recognition: do we know how to thank? Do we know how to recognize the good that is done to us when, so often, we take it for granted?
- 4.- Patience: do we know how to wait before being served, looked at or noticed? Do we not complain very often because we consider that the speed towards us is not there?
- 5.- Gentleness: speak gently, lower our tone and smile. What a difference, isn't it, since the screams no longer resonate in the house!
- 6.- Penance is the fruit of contrition: we must repair what has been broken, what has been badly done or badly said.
- 7.- And finally chastity! Virtue to meditate in our time of undress, lack of modesty, abuse in all carnal incentives. Chastity is the virtue of any dignified and Christian society. No immodest parties, no processions of naked people who claim all the vices of the demon Asmodeus, this fallen angel who presides over all the sins of lust. Chastity is forgotten in today's world, which exhibits everything that good morality condemns and which even condemns by laws the opposition to these sins.

My children, flee from these wicked people who pervert society, protect your children from their harmful influence and pray in the evening as a family to remain united and fervent.

May God bless you, He loves you, He will protect you if you ask Him and the Blessed Virgin Mary will also protect you. Mary is your Mother and she knows your needs. Invoke her in your difficulties and she will be your most precious help.

Know the divine precepts

My Love is close to all who pray to Me and venerate Me. I am with them as a loved one and My joy with them is intense. The candor of My people is also great, they are devoted to Me but few are concerned with knowing the science of God, that is to say theology.

This matter is more intellectual and concerns more priests and representatives of My Church. The people follow them, trust them and give Me their love. Knowledge of doctrine is nevertheless important and the preparation courses for first communion, for solemn communion, for confirmation, must give My people the necessary basic knowledge of My teaching. Marriage preparation courses are also very important and then, the sermons of each Sunday Mass must contribute to the teaching and knowledge of My doctrine as one advances in age and holiness.

These crowds which converge on the places of apparition of My Mother, the most holy Virgin Mary, are fervent but all need guidance and the great vigilance of the pastors of My flock. However, these priests, for many, were themselves disconcerted by the innovations which one wanted to include in the teaching of Jesus-Christ. A wind of freedom has blown over My Church and subjectivism has entered Her laws. "If you think you're doing well, that's good! ". "If you don't have the express will to do evil, you don't do it".

"If you sincerely reflect on the things of life, your conclusions should not be wrong. It is therefore your appreciation of the good that makes law and not the law of God taught by Jesus Christ and the Ten Commandments given to men through Moses.

The good is an objective datum, it is not subjective. The good willed by God is essential, that is to say indisputable, it does not depend on the feeling of the creature. Abortion is evil because it is forbidden by the 5th Commandment: "Murder and scandal will avoid, hatred and anger alike". There is no question here of the desire or the surprise of expecting a child. It is about respecting all human life. The Lord alone is Master of life and death.

He alone gives life, He alone takes it away. A conceived child is a child to be received and protected physically and morally. There is no alternative justifying his killing.

The 6th and 9th Commandments are the corollaries: "Purity will observe in your acts carefully" and "In thoughts, desires, will take care to remain entirely pure". It is only by the grace of marriage that the conception of a child is lawful, and any act not in conformity with these two commandments is due to misunderstanding, indifference or ignorance of these two divine orders.

This is why priests should insistently teach purity of intention and action because the temptation is great to deviate from it. These two Commandments concern every moment of your life. Today's society is sick with depravity and libertinism, and only conscientious and regular penance is able to cure it.

Be fervent, My children, but also be penitent because only penance will make you strong and provident. Your soul is at stake, know this, and if you don't correct yourself, the demon will sneer and carry you to his hateful lair when your time to leave the earth has come. Read and memorize the Ten Commandments, they are on this site in the 'Prayers' section and apply yourself to be faithful to them.

God bless you.

Divine Providence

My Love is such that I flood souls who trust Me with graces. They are Mine and I love them with divine Love that defies all competition. This Love, I proved it by voluntarily giving My life for all of them, and My so cruel death was a balm on their wounds, those of the sins that they all commit – and even that they cannot all avoid. These sins that Adam and Eve instituted by their own great fault, that of independence from God, are a flaw that only God could repair.

The Son of Man, God Himself, performed this act of redemption of the human species and no one other than Him was able to do it. All mankind and nature itself have been restored in God's infinite Love, and through the merits of His Sacrifice He will restore His work to the end of the world.

The next renovation is near, very near, your current generation will know it. The world is so bad today, men sacrifice their own children to their materialism and selfishness, and a generation that eliminates its succession will inexorably die out.

Only God is Master of life and death and He does not allow this prerogative to be stolen from Him. This is why the abominable crime of these innocents cries out to Heaven for vengeance and God will let himself be touched, He will intervene without further delay.

My very dear children, be confident because God, I, your Saviour, know what I allow and what I do not allow. Satan is free but I, God, repress him and his freedom is subject to My authority. He does, he will destroy, he will cause suffering but when his task is done, and not beyond, I will intervene to repair, restore and bless.

As for the Holy Sacrifice of the Cross, Lucifer and the whole horde of demons thought they were victorious but they were masterfully defeated. So will it be for you, My very dear children, you will suffer but think of uniting yourselves to My Cross. You will do penance, but remember to unite yourself to My Cross. You will cry, yes, but pull yourself together because your sacrifice will be holy: it will serve the redemption and the imminent restoration of the divine work. When this passage is accomplished, you will be demanding, understanding and very loving Christians.

When I died and rose again, My Mother alone was confident, her virtue of Hope was exemplary. She was so filled with faith, hope and charity that, despite her immense maternal suffering, she did not doubt, she hoped unconditionally; she was the spouse of the Holy Spirit, she loved God with such a gift of herself that she is your model and your rampart. Be like him, My children, you are his sons and daughters, and what could be more complimentary than to be like your Mother. Keep a lively and firm faith, do not be worried about the turn of political or civil decisions, you are the children of Mary and you do not tremble.

When disturbing orders are given to you, keep your calm and your confidence in your Heavenly Father. He protects you despite what He allows. Your freedom is a gift from Heaven and if you make a decision it is yours not that of anyone who does not know you personally. Stay free, keep the faith, keep your autonomy and resist when unjust orders are given to you that you do not understand or that come from people who do not know you, who do not share your faith, your trust in God and in His very holy mother. The Lord Jesus Christ was independent of the Jewish authorities who scolded and tried to trap Him. They put Him to death, yes, but it was He who allowed them to do so, it was He who had chosen and accepted His mission as Redeemer of all humanity and, through His Cross, He opened the Heaven to all men from the beginning to the end of the world.

What is God's Providence? It is the divine will which causes you to be born into such a family and which, throughout your life, when you are submissive and devoted to Him, guides you through daily circumstances until the day of your death. Providence guides you by putting you before obligations or giving you choices, so you, My children, pray and pray again. When you have a decision to make, pray before, during and after, and God will be with you, with you and before you.

Let yourself be guided by Him, by His Providence, as for the Son of Man and the most holy Virgin Mary, and He will lead you on the path on which He wants you.

I bless you, My children, I do not leave you and I love you.

The grace of martyrdom (II)

I am the Almighty, the Most High and I allow what happens to men on earth. The current situation in France and in the world is directed by people who respond to orders from higher authorities who are themselves remotely guided while thinking they are acting voluntarily and with power. My enemy is always the same, therefore you must not fear or obey those who depend on him. This enemy is the same one who instigated the Jews to crucify Me and he does not give a favor. He is rough, wicked, ruthless and thirsty for blood and torture.

This is why, My dearest children, if you happen to be caught in its nets, as some will be, pray and entrust yourselves to Me. I prayed to My Heavenly Father throughout My journey from the Garden of Olives to the crucifixion, and the holy martyrs also always prayed during their torture.

It happens that some are given the grace to be spared from suffering, but others receive another grace: that of being able to endure great suffering in peace.

When a martyr suffers for his Catholic faith, for God, in union with the Cross of Calvary, he receives his own graces to help him and God knows which he needs. This is how Saint Lawrence was able to have some humor on his grill and how many other saints won the admiration of their executioners.

So there is nothing to fear in advance. If God leads you on this path, His Will be done, He will watch over everyone and the royal road on which He will accompany you will be your glory for endless ages.

When God allows a punishment, He also gives the graces that the faithful need to face it in the peace and serenity of every fervent devotee. You must therefore not fear what is coming, you must trust in God, in His Providence and remain firm in your decisions, those that you have taken after having prayed and placed yourself under His protection.

The Most Blessed Virgin Mary came to warn you many times and she did not stop asking you to pray. Prayer is such a force on the heart of God, not to do your will but His. In the Garden of Olives, I, the Lord, prayed with all My soul because the trial that was taking place was dreadful. As a man, I feared it and it is My humanity that would suffer it. I needed the strength not to shy away from Me, the strength to accept everything holy, the strength to give Myself completely to this much-desired offering to save My brothers and all humanity.

The grace of martyrdom is given to those who pray before, during and until the last moment of their human life. The great saints sometimes had painful deaths, but the penance exercised during their lives had prepared them for it. Penance is the fruit of the virtues which open Heaven while license is the fruit of the vices which lead to hell.

My children, do not be afraid, keep the faith, resist the incitements of the world and be sure that I see you, I watch you and encourage you to remain faithful and devoted.

God bless you, He knows what you need and He loves you. May He too be praised and blessed.

Passions

May God be blessed and so be all He does. When God creates, He always blesses what He does. He had created Adam and Eve and these first two human beings were blessed by Him. They did not live up to their blessing but whenever God acts, He does so with His Love, Joy, Dedication and Blessing. When He created the animals, the plants, the earth and all that it is, He blessed them and gave them the best of what they are.

Thus, the closer the animals are to man, the more they resemble him and the more real their friendship is. The man generally loves his horse, his donkey, his dog, his cat and all the animals in his care. They are created for each other and with each other. The man is the leader, the animals are subject to him and if he is a good master, the animals are happy to see him and to work for him. Some men are cruel or selfish, or without humanity, and animals suffer for it.

Adam, in giving names to the animals, did not find a helper who was perfectly matched to him (Gn 2, 20) and, although he was not alone, surrounded by those animals who were subject to him, he was incomplete. God then made him a companion, drawn from his bones so that she would be like him and he recognized himself in her. It is the woman, created by God to be united to the man and that together they become one. Woman and man, man and woman, two in one flesh, so saith God.

When God created woman, he gave her to man, just as in a Catholic marriage, man and woman are united in one flesh as in the first time of humanity. One man, one woman, for each other and with each other, such was the creation of man and woman and this is the way in which humanity must continue to live and thrive.

include.

The man or woman who does not want to behave according to divine law by trying to legally unite with a gender that is the same as theirs, is guilty of a misdeed which directly contravenes their nature and will. of God. There is no deviation admitted by the Most High in the order of nature that He Himself established, He established His laws in creation and no one has the right to contradict Him. Those who do so will receive neither His satisfaction nor even His indulgence. Those who do so are in opposition to the law He has established in nature and which is called 'natural law'. Man is not empowered to change this law which applies from the beginning to the end of the world and those who, abusing their scientific knowledge in these areas, act like apprentice sorcerers – for which they are truly punished in this world and – , will be very severely the next.

When a man or woman feels this unnatural attraction within him or her, reason should keep him or her away from it. If this attraction is strong, it is no stronger than the natural attraction of a man and a woman to each other. This attraction is to be directed, controlled, reasoned. All attraction is to direct, control and reason, man is endowed with reason, intelligence and will, but any accomplished work is the fruit of his voluntary and, in general, thoughtful action. When a man gets married, he thinks about it and he commits after careful consideration. Hasty marriages are often thoughtless and do not offer the guarantee of durability. So attraction is not enough to make a lasting commitment and any attraction must be flange.

God created man for Heaven, not to satisfy all his passions as the devil pushes him there. The passions must be curbed, controlled, and regularly directed to please God and walk in His light.

Passions can be driving forces but they must always be controlled and directed, like a fiery horse which brings joy to its master with its boldness and obedience.

The current world has allowed the savagery of passions to rule society and this savagery is the work of the hatred of the devil who uses passions to damn man and destroy nature.
earth.

Pull yourself together, My children, return to the sobriety of your ancestors who revered God and the Church, and who respected natural law and the Ten Commandments. Return to the church, to the observance of Sunday which is the Lord's Day, to the harmony which must exist between men and women and which is the guarantee of stable homes and large families. The family is the first cell of society and an unstable cell destabilizes the whole in which it has a role to play and a place to maintain.

The families that we would like to be different from those wanted by God, do not please Him and He will not let them multiply. The time has come for Him to let evil destroy itself because evil is destructive, it cannot give good.

Be strong, My children, keep your courage because the evils will accumulate and their bursting is near. It is characteristic of evil to crack, to demolish, to shrink. It has to be that way but God does not forget you. He is with you, so you too, go to Him, to church, and draw from Him the courage He will give you, the peace He will instill in your hearts and the strength He will not miss. not to communicate to you.

Thank Me, love Me and seek Me, I am here!

To you, adopted sons of God

My children who read Me, it is to you today that I want to address Myself. To you, to you, and again to you whose eyes run over these lines at this precise moment. You are young, older or younger, but to Me you are My child, whatever your age.

When you are with Me in Heaven, you will be eternally in the beauty of the age arrived at its most just state, and you will smile because you will be fully happy. Yes, you will smile and I make a request to you: smile already, always be smiling, pleasant, accessible, because I was like this on earth and, in Heaven, I still am.

My saints are also exceedingly accessible, they never seem to be disturbed by interrupting their occupations and they are always ready to give their time, even when it appears that they have none available. My saints are in My image, they give Me great joy and I delight in their midst. They smile at Me and they cheer Me up.

This is how, My children, you must be among yourselves, always welcoming, always willing to listen, always present and always accessible. When a friend approaches you, you welcome him pleasantly and this is how you should be towards all your fellow men. They are your brothers in humanity and you are in the image and likeness of Jesus Christ, who never disdained anyone, who never pushed anyone away. Jesus Christ drew all of Israel towards Him and the Jewish authorities were very jealous. But you, like your Master and Lord, welcome your fellow human beings, do not push them away. Don't be jealous of those who seem to be more successful than you; it would be similar to the attitude of the Jewish scribes and Pharisees at the time of the coming of your sweet Lord.

I had not come to impose Myself, no, certainly not, but to draw you all to God, of whom I am the eternal Word. I have given you the example of generosity, modesty, ardor in missionary work and the spirit of faith. What is the spirit of faith? It is seeing everything from the divine angle, doing everything to please God and praying to be like Him and devoted in everything.

See the lives of the saints, how industrious they were, how precious their life was to bring God wherever they went and to instruct their brethren to become good, diligent, and very believing Christians. This is how you too must act, following the example of the Son of God in everything and above all never say "let's not exaggerate"! On the contrary, give all your time to serve God through your duty as a state, through your duty as a husband or wife, as a parent, as a colleague, as an employee or as a superior, as a Christian and proud of it. Yes, being a son of God by adoption, that is to say by baptism, gives you duties due to your rank of son of the Most High and you must resemble your Eternal Father as you can resemble your father or your earth mother. The resemblance to your father or mother on earth is physical and moral, and that to your heavenly Father is similar: physical and moral.

Man created in the image and likeness of God (Gen 1:27) received the grace to resemble Him and if through original sin he lost the sanctifying grace in which he had been placed, through baptism and the six other sacraments, grace was returned to him sacramentally and no longer innately. This grace places the child of God in this state of physical and moral resemblance which he must not lose under any pretext.

Keep this likeness, cherish it and respect it. She is your greatness, your beauty and your dignity. Without it, you would lose your adopted parentage, you would be like an orphan or a poor abandoned child who knows nothing about himself and who can be kidnapped and exploited by any ill-intentioned adult. This is how the demon acts, he takes advantage of religious ignorance or neglect to refer to it to bribe souls and make them perish out of hatred of God and men. Do not let yourself be taken in by it but cling to Me, your Brother and your God, imitate Me and never tire of it.

May God bless you, He loves you, He created you for Him, for perfect and eternal happiness and I say to you: you are Mine, so be it also fully and forever.

The peace

Yes, My Love is so great that I do not want to lose those poor ignorant souls willing to love Me if they had been informed of it. There are many of these souls stripped of the grace of knowledge and yet, if they had been evangelized, they would have converted.

The Holy Catholic Church has done a good job of mission by bringing the Good News to the ends of the world and then the men of the Church, for many, thought that religious freedom, a new principle of the Church since the last council, meant respect for heretical or false beliefs and that proselytizing was an excess because other religions would be respectable. But error is to be fought, without of course harming the freedom that God has given to every man, and every man has the right to know his Creator and Father, and to be baptized.

It is disturbing to note that many men of the church have agreed to put the only true religion on the same footing as false religions or those which teach error and profess it as true. In doing so, they themselves professed the error of equivalence and, by that very fact, themselves became heretics.

The Catholic faith should be the universal belief, because there is only one God in Three Persons, Creator and Saviour, and every man is entitled to honor Him, to know Him and to be devoted to Him. Every man has the right to know the only true religion and such is the role of the Holy Church: to teach and bring the sacraments so that every man may be saved.

The proselytism of the Holy Catholic Church is her mission: "Go throughout the whole world, proclaim the Good News to all creation; whoever believes and is baptized will be saved; whoever does not believe will be condemned” (Mk 16:15-16). And Saint Matthew also says: “(...) teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you” (Mt 28,20). It is therefore wrong to think that man is free to believe what he wants or what he believes to be true. The Holy Church has the duty to teach what Jesus Christ has prescribed, it is not a choice, it is a duty.

Other religions such as Protestantism or non-Christian religions are refusals to submit to the authority of the holy Catholic Church or are human myths.

Since the last council, religious freedom, in the name of the dignity of man, grants him the freedom to believe as he wishes, within a religion chosen in conscience - while the conscience must be well trained to choose well ! Thus there was the tragedy of the meeting in Assisi on October 27, 1986, where all religions were invited to pray for peace. Some prayed to God and others to their gods. It was a completely human union, not according to the will of God who, through Jesus Christ, gives His Peace: “I leave you peace, I give you My peace; I do not give it to you as the world gives it to you” (Jn 14:27). So the world cannot give peace, only the Lord gives it and it begins with baptism and conversion.

This is how human peace did not last long and the deadly war in the former Yugoslavia extended from 1991 to 2001, barely 5 years after this human peace meeting which had no result.

The peace that the Lord God gives comes first in the soul and the desire for concord is the consequence. Saint Francis of Assisi (1182-1226) understood this peace well and made it his beautiful prayer:

*Lord, make me an instrument of your peace, Where there is hatred, let me put love, Where there is offense, let me put forgiveness,
Where there is discord, let me put unity,
Where there is error, let me put truth,
Where there is doubt, let me put faith.*

Where is despair, let me put hope, Where is sadness, let me put joy.

O Lord, may I seek not so much to be consoled as to console, to be understood as to understand, to be loved as to love.

For it is by giving oneself that one receives, it is by forgetting oneself that one finds oneself, it is by forgiving that one is forgiven, it is by dying that one is resuscitated to eternal life.

This is what the great meeting of Assisi for peace should have been: that of Jesus Christ, that of truth, that of faith, that of light.

A time will come soon, very soon, when this prayer will become reality. I want to answer it, I want to bring My peace to earth, that requested by Saint Francis, My seraphic disciple, and that requested by all those who, after him, have addressed this prayer to Me. Yes, I will hear it and I will be so happy to fill you with this peace so sweet, so good and so sincere.

Peace, My peace, be with you and with your loved ones.

The Wisdom of God vs Liberalism

I am the Most High, the Almighty, the Infinitely Wise. The wise man derives his wisdom from God, who possesses it to a point inaccessible to man. The Wisdom of God created the universe, the worlds, the terrestrial world and the universe in which the earth is located, and the wise little man is very small in the middle of this immensity dominated by divine Wisdom.

In His Wisdom, God created heaven and earth, and last came man and woman. God covered them with His Wisdom and deposited in them the sanctifying grace which was to lead and preside over their destiny. This was not the case, and the wise man of today is a wounded man who gets his limited wisdom from God, but it too is wounded by the original wound of the man and woman of the first day. We must therefore pray to the Holy Spirit so that after the sacrament of confirmation, the outpouring of the Holy Spirit in the soul of the confirmant, the man raised to grace can receive within himself a little of divine Wisdom.

Wisdom is the bringing into man of the knowledge of the divine balance, which gives when it is necessary to give and which withholds when it is necessary to withhold. Wisdom is made up of all the gifts: knowledge, direction, management, understanding, foresight, visibility, experience and the Almighty Power which decides, which allows, which stops and which monitors. Human wisdom is made of experience but above all of the light of the Holy Spirit which illuminates human judgment and reasoning. The experience is human while the light received from the Holy Spirit is the fruit of the grace of the sacraments. Wisdom in the government of the family by the father and the mother, in the political government of the different levels of the State, in all the governments of all the entities formed by and for humanity, this wisdom must be sought in the prayer and devotion to the Holy Spirit.

If they pray, men in charge of other men will be better leaders than those who do not pray. And those who indulge in occult powers to rise above the fray, they obtain neither wisdom nor longevity in their superior situation.

Every situation of command is given by God and if it is not given, it may have been permitted because of divine Wisdom which allows evil for a greater good to come, still unknown to men. Atheist power is an evil and this evil comes to us from the French Revolution (1789-1799) which changed the face of France and the world. The monarchy took some time to completely disappear and the imperial upsurge carried within it the seeds of nascent liberalism which, combined with the rejection of God, gave birth to the atheist society that you know today and which is the almost universal imprint of so-called developed countries.

"My freedom above all, before that of others": this is the contradiction in which the former Catholic countries find themselves and this mentality which has become general has corrupted the Catholic spirit of charity and the search for the common good. The liberal spirit which allows everything so that the individual does not feel oppressed is the source of the depravity of society, of iniquitous laws and of the unbridled search for pleasures. This liberal society is desired by the devil who rages against everything that is of God. Liberalism under the guise of good, freedom for everyone, is the opposite of the order and freedom of the children of God. "Me first served" is in opposition to "God first served"; selfishness in opposition to charity, pride in opposition to humility, liberticidal morals in opposition to convenience and chastity.

In which society, My children, do you want to live? In the one that is yours today or in the one that I am preparing for you? In the one I am preparing for you, of course! So, My dear ones, guard yourselves from the bad, pray and remain confident. When evil grows, keep faith; when evil explodes, keep faith; when evil liquefies because it destroys itself, always have faith. The world is in My hands, I will let it go its own way and all of you who suffer from it, as well as those of you who survive it, will be rewarded in God's way, that is, by your entry into Heaven and the hopeless happiness you will enjoy forever.

Be happy with Me, love Me; rejoice because My Hour is near, it is already here.

Freedom

My Love will remain eternally, It is so great, so deep and so beautiful that It seduces the most hardened hearts. Why then could He not seduce Judas Iscariot nor the many Judases who lived and who live on earth? Why couldn't He seduce Lucifer to whom He had granted so many gifts? Is it because He lacked this deep Love towards them while He gave it in abundance to others?

It is impossible because, in this case, He would not be God. What made He couldn't deal with it? Because He created man and the angels free and He Himself never breaks His own rules. Freedom has been given perfectly to the angels as created spirits, it has been given fully to the human creature and it has also been given to the lower living beings, each in his measure.

Freedom is a gift from God and God does not take back what He gives. This freedom of the will is total, physical freedom is less so because God has placed barriers to matter and these barriers are insurmountable. Freedom of the will is given to man completely, but it will be influenced or misused according to education and the condition of each person. Thus a judgment will be the fruit of instruction or of ignorance, and the freedom chosen will be good or less good depending on all the circumstances in which this or that person finds himself. Freedom nonetheless remains because man will act or not act, it depends, but he will feel legitimate in his decision.

That is why a good education will act on the conscience; faults or qualities, virtues or vices will influence him but always in full personal freedom.

It is thus that the pride which invaded Lucifer made his angelic freedom act; he was fully aware of it and fully willing. God had adorned him with such beautiful virtues but freely, absolutely freely, he rejected God and all his own qualities. It was the same for Judas who wanted the glory of being the right arm of the temporal King of Israel. But when he knew that the Lord Jesus Christ did not desire to be that King, in his disappointed pride he rebelled against Him.

It follows that pride, the first of the deadly sins, is the source of great free faults.
God does not repress this freedom which He has given as its own and irrevocably.

Heaven and hell are peopled with free souls: they have sanctified themselves through love and freely or they have damned themselves through rejection and freely.

May God be blessed for His gifts, for His Love and for His Omniscience. He made heaven and earth and everything He created is magnificent!

The day of the Lord

I am very much in love with all My creation and I would so like it to respond to it. But she is disobedient, proud, unstable and all about her business. She looks no further than the tip of her nose and if she doesn't look forward, she looks back and cries over her fate.

Nothing will hold her back, she has begun her fall and the bottom is still far away. The Abyss, moreover, is bottomless and, therefore, the fall takes it further and further away from salvation. I am salvation and I alone can stop this fall for those who will not want to follow the devil. It is humanity that falls but people, one by one, can be rescued.

Be mine, My children, do not join the world, stay behind, live by faith and by the sacraments and you will be out of the fray. The shouting crowd is a dishonor for the rulers but still it would be necessary that this crowd be well directed. A crowd is always heterogeneous but Christ Jesus allowed himself to be acclaimed by it even though He did not want to be crowned king by it. Although He is the King of every nation, the King of nations, the King of all nations, the King of Heaven and earth, His Kingdom is spiritual and not temporal. Its precepts are immutable, Its laws are those of God and they will remain until the end of the centuries. Nations do not have the right to ignore them and those who ignore them or even prohibit them will be punished and harshly!

The nations are of the temporal order, so they will be punished in the temporal order. Men are of the temporal order by their mortal body but they are of the spiritual order by their immortal soul. This is why wicked men will be punished in the spiritual order and not necessarily in the temporal order: their mortal body depends on their soul and it is this, imperatively, which will be judged. It is for this reason that it seems that some wicked people die crowned with human glory and men believe that they have succeeded in their lives. Well no, My children, no wicked person wins by his misdeeds: Judas lost his soul there and others, many others, also lost their soul there.

Eternal life is the only life granted to good souls, those who have devoted themselves to God and their neighbor, although they must be Catholic and devoted to their Master and Lord. Eternal life is for the children of God, and those who do not know Him when they leave the earth will not have the infused knowledge to know Him or even meet Him on the other side of the veil, i.e. after their earthly death. We die as we lived. If one dies ignorant, one is ignorant, if one dies educated and baptized, one can be born to eternal life educated and baptized.

Our Lord Jesus Christ became incarnate to save the world but only those who are His disciples and followers will be saved. The others, those who do not yet know Him must be converted, it is the role of the holy Church to distribute the treasure of the faith and the sacraments in order to give birth in the Church and nourish the whole world with faith.

My children, pray, pray much so that the pagans are converted, so that the apostates return to the true faith, so that the Jews are converted, they who were waiting for the Messiah but ignored Him when He came, so that the infidels and the ignorant are converted.

Even the faithful often have a jolting faith, they often no longer know the Ten Commandments nor those of the Holy Church:

*One God you will adore and love perfectly
His holy name will be respected, fleeing blasphemy and false oath
The day of the Lord will be kept by serving God devoutly*

Who observes these first three commandments, who keeps them and who puts them first? Aren't there so many who put God on hold during their vacations or holidays? Who swear by His Holy Name regardless of Whom they invoke in doing so?

And the Sunday mass which is an obligation requested by God Himself, who cares? The Holy Church has allowed the Lord's day to be brought forward to Saturday evening for the people who could not attend mass on Sunday. This latitude was a mistake because this blessed day of Sunday is not Saturday or any other day of the week. And those who have become accustomed to Saturday evening mass only to be freed from it on Sunday do not honor God on this blessed day of the Lord.

Sunday is the Lord's Day; it is not any other day of the week that would be, and if one is free to go to mass on Sunday, it is that day that must be observed and not the evening before. What is love ? Is it to love for oneself or is it to love for others? The rules given by God were given to man to help him love Him as the first commandment requires: to worship and to love perfectly. Yes, it is a commandment, but God gives first and it is normal that He asks to be loved in return. He gives everything, He gives you His Love so that you love Him through Him and if you refuse to love Him, you will have no part with Him.

His Love is not forced, it is so strong, so sweet, so personal that you cannot be indifferent to it. You generally like those who love you, those who are generous, good, those who go out of their way for you, those who are considerate and those who discreetly give you what you need. God does all this and, what's more, He saved you.

How could you not love Him? How could you not go to some trouble to obey Him, to pray, to thank Him, to ask Him for forgiveness for your imperfections?

This is the exchange you have with your God, He gives you everything, it's up to you to thank Him and please Him by obeying Him.

Let your adherence to the Catholic religion be true, honest and regular and God will be happy with you. It is I, Jesus Christ, who affirms this to you and who comes to you to teach you again, to put you back on the path to Life, the one that awaits you and which you must not miss.

I bless you, My very dear children, I am waiting for you and I love you. Be all Mine, do not turn your back on Me. I know you, I am always with you. So be it.

Keep your freedom

My children, how many times have I asked you to consecrate yourselves to Me. Whatever your marital status, whether you are alone or in family, or in congregation, consecrate yourselves to Me. Consecrate yourselves to My Sacred Heart and I have already indicated the prayer to you. You will find it on this site at the end of the 'Prayers' section. Pray and pray again. This act of consecration of the human race to the Sacred Heart of Jesus, composed by Pope Leo XIII on June 11, 1899, is a precious prayer for your time. Pray it as often as possible, learn it even by heart because some prayers are stronger than others on the heart of God and this one touches Me particularly.

I want to save you, I want to protect each of you who read Me, I am your Father, your Brother and your God, and what does an almighty Father want if not to join His beloved sons. But you have to ask Him, you have to beg Him, you have to insist because times are now measured in days and no longer in years. I want you with Me in thoughts and prayers, very close so that I can take you under My mantle and protect you from what is coming.

It is now the end of the holidays, school life and professional life resume, with their constraints and fatigue. Whatever your activity, do not forget Me, keep Me in the forefront of your concerns, do your duty of state for Me first and for your employers and your customers second. Keep Me close to you, within you, and so I will remain close to you wherever you are and whatever you do.

The world is getting lost, it is bogged down in health concerns that have no place to be and, in doing so, it locks you little by little into a protection that is not one. He lock you up like a sinner locks up his fish and then never let go. These locked fish are delivered to their master and this master, in your case, is neither the Lord nor His apostles. He is the one who from all eternity measured himself against God and stole His children from Him.

Maintain your freedom, My children, as much as you can and if there is a choice to be made, let this choice be made before God by prayer and in the greatest confidence in His perpetual and irremovable Supremacy. The poison that we propose to you and that even we want to impose on you, remains a poison and if you support it, it remains no less harmful and dangerous. This process of wanting to vaccinate the entire population with a product which is still experimental and which has not proved safe for too many people, is an inadmissible and irrational act. But this decision is not irrational, it is voluntary and repressive. Yes, the will to repress is real and if some citizens support the poison, it is because the Lord allows it.

Other repressions are in the making and soon those who imagine being spared will also be challenged. These actions that are beyond you are directed by masterminds and, through technology, they will make themselves masters of each individual, of each person, of each family.

Solidarity between My children will be welcome, their charity even more so. Do not hesitate to approach the members of your families, your friends, your neighbours, because what you will do to your neighbour, it is to Me that you will do it. "(...) because I was hungry and you gave Me to eat, I was thirsty and you gave Me to drink. I was a stranger and you welcomed Me, naked you clothed Me, sick you visited Me, prisoner and you came to see Me (...) Insofar as you did it to one of these little brothers, you have done it to Me" (Mt 25, 35-40).

Yes, My children, "it is by giving that we receive, it is by forgetting ourselves that we find, it is by forgiving that we are forgiven" (St Francis of Assisi). I bless you, My dearest children, I take you into My Sacred Heart and I love you in God's way, infinitely.

Trust and Charity

Yes, times are bad and you must not, My dear children, lose your trust in Me. Everything that will happen is planned, I know the future as much as I know the past, and all of your present is known to Me in minute detail.

You are Mine as I am yours and I will not abandon you as long as you pray to Me and give Me your full trust. Yes, it is trust that God asks, said the holy Curé of Ars, and I ask it of you incessantly and permanently. If something scares you: trust! If something bothers you: trust! If something annoys you: calm down, self-control and confidence!

This is how, Myself, on earth, I have always acted. I preached a lot, I let myself be taken over by the crowds but I never got angry. When I was verbally attacked, I responded calmly, when I was tired or even exhausted, I did not show it except when, alone with My apostles, I happened to fall asleep. I dominated My annoyances, I smiled when despite My fatigue I was harassed, and the kindness with which I spoke to everyone never ceased.

This is how I ask My children to imitate Me, to take example from Me and from My Mother, the most holy Virgin Mary, who, too, never let go. Always good, always welcoming, always gentle and smiling. She provided service in such a natural way that no one ever thought of bothering her. She was charitable and always radiated joy to see or see others again.

It is thus, My children, that I encourage you to be you too: always available and charitable, always faithful to your duty of state which obliges you and which is your first duty because it binds you to God.

The difficult times ahead will give you many opportunities to show yourself charitable and concerned about your neighbor; do not miss them but if you happen to miss them, ask God for forgiveness in confession and in your heart if the opportunity to confess is not immediate.

When the storm falls on you, on your country and also on the world, be prepared to think of your family, of your neighbor and of God more than of yourselves. "God first served" should be the permanent motto of each of you. And I, God, will take you to My Heart and prepare a beautiful place for you in My divine Abode.

I need you !

I am the Most High, the Almighty, the very worthy Master of Mine and I need them. Yes, I need you, My children, each of you in particular. What I am telling you here is real, to you who read Me, yes, I need you, your cooperation, your charity, your benevolence and your forgetting of yourself.

When you are in troubled times, don't think of yourselves. You are warned, you know that unforeseen events will happen soon and, therefore, you will not be surprised. Pray in order to be ready, courageous and available, and you will be My helpers to your neighbour, to your families, to those around you. Do not criticize those who will not be ready as you will be and, when necessary but not otherwise, come to their aid because they will need your presence or your consideration.

Those you help will not necessarily be believers, but your foresight and support will make them think. They don't know or don't know anything, and that will be their weakness. Let this not be in your eyes an obstacle to helping them, quite the contrary.

You will do what you can, you will not impose yourself but you will be with them if they accept you and your outstretched hand.

I promise to be with them, too, and if they are grateful for your intervention, it is to Me that they will be grateful. I will also take them under My protection because recognition is a first step towards acceptance of My reality. You will be My witnesses and, just as I sent My apostles and disciples to announce the Good News to the whole world, so I pray you, My children, be you also My witnesses in a world which no longer knows Me, which no longer knows My laws, which no longer knows My teachings, which no longer knows the difference between the world and My faithful.

The world has become paranoid, which means that it overestimates itself, that it has an excessive pride, it is suspicious, aggressive, touchy, it has tendentious judgments. Such is the modern world which does not support any contestation of its own good-thinking which, in reality, is a bad-thinking. He refuses God, he refuses to honor Him, to give Him first place, and he disobeys every one of the Ten Commandments of God.

This is the world in which you live today and the priests of My Church do not say it enough. They should go over each of My Ten Commandments and detail them. They themselves would be surprised to see how bad, perverse, nauseating the world is. This world is impure, it kills its children in their mother's womb and the women themselves are shrews instead of being good mothers and good wives. Men and women work for themselves and few have the time to raise their children as good, devoted and fervent Catholics. Men and women are often more concerned with what pleases them than with their state duty; their duty to honor and love God perfectly is easily forgotten in favor of their fleeting desires and attractions.

Please, My children, review each of My Ten Commandments and do a thorough examination of your entire life and your present state. Write down your shortcomings and correct them, because your time is running out. When disruptions and complications in your daily life occur, you must be free: free from not following the news on television, free from not being able to access the Internet, free from running out of gas and free from find yourself without electricity. It will be no different from the way of life of generations before you who never complained about missing what they did not know.

But you, My children, detach yourselves from these addictions which bind you to the evil world and which bring you neither good nor availability to God.

The generations of the past lived to the rhythm of the sun and did not worry about knowing the news from distant regions or lands. They did their state duty, they worked, they raised their children and regular life was favorable to them. But little by little, the steamroller of modernity arrived and men always wanted more. Good which is added to good is legitimate but the progression of evil, immorality, selfishness and one-upmanship is harmful. Everything that is bad is destined to disappear, so, My children, do not get attached to it. Reserve yourself for God, for His glory and His Victory.

I love you, I will not let you be taken by the vengeful and repressive demon. You are Mine, I know you and I protect you. Be My beloved sons and daughters and make Me your love.

There are many mansions in the Father's house (Jn 14:2)

Yes, there are so many new things for a soul entering eternity that I could talk about it at length. During My lifetime on earth, I preached and gave the teaching necessary to please God and enter the Eternal Home. This is enough because this is what you necessarily need to know. We must live on earth in such a way as to become holy, by doing penance because the flesh undergoes many temptations, by forgetting ourselves and by praying to remain united to the Holy Trinity in which is Life.

That's how you get into Eternal Life. But there are still many questions that arise about ignorant people of goodwill. Do they deserve to live or die eternally when Christ Jesus, the Savior, died on the Cross to save all humanity and, in it, the souls who followed His teaching and who received by His Body and His Blood His Most Holy Life in them? Some researchers among the teachers of the Holy Catholic Church have tried to give an answer but these answers are not convincing because they fail to refer to the infallible word of Jesus Christ who indeed affirmed "if you do not eat the flesh of the Son of man and drink His blood, you will not have Life in you (Jn 6:53).

There are several conditions for having eternal life: baptism in one of its three forms (sacrament, desire, blood), faith in Jesus Christ, putting His teaching into practice and finally, sacramental communion. The disciple of Jesus Christ can be a martyr for his faith, in which case he will concentrate all the gifts of God in the offering of his life. The aspirant to Catholicism, if he dies before being able to fulfill his vow, can obtain eternal life through the baptism of desire because God knows the most intimate desires and their maturity.

But then, what happens to all those who, of good will, are not children of God by baptism? In My lifetime on earth I said: 'There are many mansions in the house of the Father' (Jn 14, 2) and further: 'No one comes to the Father except through Me' (Jn 14, 6). To these poor children of the earth, if they do not come to Me, they cannot enter the Kingdom of Heaven and this I affirm by My Word of Truth. I cannot affirm anything else because I would then disavow My infallible teaching, that which I gave to My apostles and disciples and which the holy Catholic Church has the duty to proclaim.

What then becomes of these souls, good but touched by original sin and not repaired by the grace of divine Life given by the Holy Church in the sacraments?

There are many dwellings in the house of the Father, yes, and there are places where these souls go, ignorant but naturally good; they do not deserve purgatory which they would not understand, neither paradise nor Heaven where they would not be in their place either. As for children born and dead without baptism and without knowledge of God^[1], they are in places of waiting and resting before the goodness of God looks upon them and delivers them, even as He delivered the righteous of the Old Testament from their place of waiting and hope^[2].

These places of waiting have a purpose and the souls who find themselves there acquire a knowledge of the divine goodness which halos their reality but which they cannot attribute directly to God since they do not know Him. They are at inner and outer peace and, without worrying about their future, they enjoy this harmonious goodness which surrounds and pacifies them. Their fate is individually in the hands of God who does not forget them and who destines them to Him when their turn comes to know Him and to give Him their love.

These "many dwellings in the house of the Father" are a reality that will be further developed when men better understand the trilogical reality of man created in the image and likeness of God: body, soul and spirit.

parable of the mountain

Original sin was a deep and lasting break in God's Plan. Man, promised happiness and eternal life, was led by the action of the demon to find himself at the bottom of a mountain that was very difficult to climb and with many steps before arriving at the summit. This is how holy men can be located at the last stage of this mountain, but the ignorant, those uneducated in the knowledge of God can be located at the foot of this mountain to be climbed and conquered.

The most agile of this last category, those at the bottom of the mountain, will go faster than the less flexible, but all, provided they hold the helping and sometimes invisible hand of God, will succeed. There will be the workers of the first hour as of the eleventh (Mt 20, 1-16), those who will arrive more quickly than others, but all will have the same stages to cross from the knowledge of God, the adherence to His Word, sacramental communion, holiness of life and finally entrance into Heaven, Eternal Life.

I am God and I give My Life for the world and for all men to be saved. Original sin has done such damage that instead of being found from the beginning of life in the steps near the top of the mountain, under Heaven, souls and bodies are found at the foot of it and must climb it and find Me. The angels, their spirit, help and encourage them, as during My Agony in the Garden of Olives where I was encouraged by an angel^[1] (Lk 22, 43) and was then able to bravely face what was to happen to Me.

The angels are your guides, My children, pray to your guardian angel who helps you so much! I will return to this theme and, in the meantime, climb your part of the mountain and always look upward.

I bless you and love you. I draw you to Me. May God be praised and loved.

When a soul starts from the bottom of the mountain, she has everything to learn: the experience, the way, the tricks, the efforts, the difficulties and even the stops because the climb is difficult. And some souls, tired or lost, stop on the way. Other souls at the same level are also untrained and not necessarily adept at helping them. It is then other souls, of a higher level, the priests for example, who come to help them, to comfort them, to support them. These priests who come to help them, do not lose their own place in the ascent, but God gives them the ability to access those who need them. The mountain is difficult for everyone and everyone climbs it at their own pace, at their own speed, according to their dedication and courage.

So it is with souls on earth: they evolve at their own pace and some stagnate while others climb quickly although not without pain. Such is the ascent of souls towards Heaven. They climb, they help each other, some stronger or more skillful and all advance, as much as they want. And then, there are also the souls who stop, who wander locally, forgetting that their duty is to walk, to climb, not to waste time because the mountain does not shrink. You have to go all the way!

Such is the situation of humanity and the mountain is the path that leads to the heights of the heavens. Some souls will be quick and generous and some will be slower, others stiff will not get there without many steps. This is the path of souls who are immortal and who, no matter how long it takes, finally reach the top.

This is how we must imagine the souls in this climb made difficult by the demon, the one who tempted Eve and made her fall. She and Adam were marching to the top but the sin original caused them to stumble seriously and they fell naked and helpless at the foot of the mountain. And since then, all souls start from the bottom of the mountain and must climb it with grace and will.

God bless you, My children, walk, advance, climb and do not stop along the way. I am with you, I too climbed this mountain and did it perfectly. My most holy Mother, in her gentleness and humility did it perfectly too, she did not drag on the way, neither Saint Joseph, nor the numerous saints who populate My Heaven and who are My joy for eternity.

Come in your turn, don't hang around, don't loiter, don't stop for fear of letting yourself be dragged away by other loiterers or by demons who are not idle.

I am waiting for you, I love you.
